

February 29, 2008

Dear Valued da Vinci Dentist,

We were brought aware of a story that broke in Columbus, Ohio regarding high amounts of lead found in a dental restoration. After research, it was discovered that the restoration had been fabricated offshore, in China. In response, da Vinci Dental Studios would like to reassure our dentists that we are one of a few laboratories registered with the US FDA and we only use US FDA-approved materials in our restorations. As most of you may already know, da Vinci's restorations have always been custom made in the United States.

For more than 31 years, da Vinci Dental Studios has been hand-crafting custom dental restorations in our West Hills, California laboratory. During this period, we have never outsourced to China and it is not in our future business plan. While we are certain that there are quality restorations being fabricated offshore, it has always been priority to have control of the materials that are used in the restorations that bear our name. This latest incident in Ohio re-enforces the fact that we have made the right decision. We hope you realize that we make these decisions to protect you, our valued customer. We want to be more than your dental laboratory, we want to be your business partner.

To help protect our dentists, we have issued a press release regarding our fabrication practices and have information on our Web site – www.davincidentalstudios.com.

Please contact us if you have any questions.

We look forward to continuing our business partnership.

Sincerely,

Chester Garcia
Chief Operating Officer
da Vinci Dental Studios